We're still waitin' Gov

By MICHAEL DANIELS

"I can assure you as soon as I get to Augusta, someone from DEP will be up here," promised Gov. John McKernan last month when Bethel was his Capital for a Day.

The issue at hand was unlicensed tire dumps in Albany, Bethel and Greenwood, and the exasperation of local officials who have been trying to get the state Department of Enviornmental Protection to take action on the sites...or even to come look at them.

Speaking at a governor's town meeting the state's chief executive put the emphasis on "will" and said he would speak directly to DEP Commissioner Dean Marriot to see that the problem was investigated.

Local officials are still waiting to see some follow through on that promise.

Greenwood Selectman Marie Bartlett, who spoke personally with the governor about the problem, said the only response she has received since the meeting was a form letter thanking her for expressing her concern about unfunded state mandates—a topic she never brought up.

"A mix-up" explained KcKernan coordinator Sarah Petrin, who accompanied the governor to Bethel.

Petrin later told The Citizen that she had herself contacted the DEP to see "what action, if any, had been taken," regarding the tire storage site in Greenwood, which is operated by Peter Gordon of Bethel and does not have either a state or town permit.

At last word she was still waiting for an answer.

Aside from this futile staff-to-staff contact, there is no sign of top-level follow up on the governor's promise.

Meanwhile, back at the local level, Greenwood Code Enforcement Officer

Greenwood selectmen lose ramp appeal

by CHRISTY CROSS

The Greenwood Board of Appeals last Thursday denied the Town of Greenwood's request for a variance to allow a handicapped-access ramp to remain at the town office.

The ramp was built last summer by a local carpenter, who is also a member of the Greenwood Planning Board. The carpenter, Jim Cyr, built the ramp with help from the Boy Scouts.

The town's request for the variance came after the fact, after the ramp had already been built on the north wall of the town office.

As a result of the appeals board action the town will have to tear out the ramp and rebuild it in another place, possibly off the front entrance, according to Greenwood Selectman Marie Bartlett.

Following the appeals board meeting, Bartlett said, "The selectmen were negligent in not applying for the permit."

However, she added, "I wish the planning board had made a courtesy phone call to the selectmen instead of going to the codes enforcement officer."

"If the planning board had been in touch with the selectmen we would have stopped this (Project) immediately," she said. "It's a classic case of lack of communication."

The ramp, built within the required 50-foot setback from Bird Hill Road, replaced a set of steps at the side exit door.

"The door was there originally; the stoop was there. We didn't realize at the time it had been built wider," Bartlett said at the appeals board meeting

According to Bartlett, Cyr measured the ramp as being one to two feet larger than the pre-existing steps. Bartlett said Selectman Ray Seames measured the ramp at exactly the same size.

According to appeals board Chairman David Tripp, the ramp is between 40 and 45 feet from the center of Bird Hill Road.

The appeal board can grant a variance only if the request meets all four conditions of the undue hardship test:

1. The land in question cannot yield a reasonable return unless a variance is granted;

SAD #44 board begs off Boschetti re-hire decision

By MICHAEL DANIELS

In a wide-ranging meeting Monday evening, the SAD #44 Board of Directors voted to raise the district's passing average from 60 to 70 and to continue the rotating class schedule at the high school.

The board, however, refused to publicly discuss or to challenge Supt. Dewaine Craig's decision not to renew the contract of elementary guidance counselor Lynn Boschetti.

Board Chairman Margaret Hand also refused to let Pat Early of Bethel address the board when a vote was taken on whether the board should go into secret session to discuss the case.

Early had collected a petition with 183 signatures in support of Boschetti, and repeatedly asked to be allowed to make a brief statement before the board voted on the matter.

At the board's previous meeting, a number of directors had also read letters from parents, teachers and pupils, all praising Boschetti's professionalism and commitment to the children of the district.

Other supporters of Boschetti attended one or both meetings.

But in the end, the board decided that that it had no grounds for challenging Craig's decision.

Boschetti is in only her second year with the district and is still on a probationary contract. By state law, the hire-fire decision on such contracts rests with the district administration, not with the school board.

This reasoning, however, was never explained to the public.

Early in the meeting, the board spent over an hour in secret session discussing "the duties and responsibilities of the school board." The Boschetti case was apparently not discussed directly in that session (which would have been illegal), nor was there any open discussion when public session resumed.

Nonetheless, when the article concerning Boschetti came up much later in the meeting, the board followed the recommendation of Chairman Hand and voted, without discussion and nearly unanimously, not to take up Boschetti's case.

That decision was apparently based on conclusions reached during the earlier secret session.

[That secret session may, in fact, have been contrary to Maine law. Supt. Craig said later that the discussion was conducted in executive session because it involved "a personnel matter"—the personnel in question being the school directors themselves. Maine's Freedom of Access Law does allow for a public body to go into secret session to discuss the duties

Bethel Planning Board revises Thursday night meeting agenda

The Bethel Planning Board agenda for the June 14 meeting has been revised.

Bethel Park Apartments, originally scheduled to appear before the board, will not be appearing.

According to a pre-meeting memo to planning board members written by Planning Assistant Rockie Graham, the site plan application for Bethel Park Apartments has not yet been received at the Town Office.

Also, Graham wrote, abutters of the project, which is planned for an eight-acre lot off Mason Street and behind Broad Street, have not been notified. Finally, she wrote, drainage and sewage issues and traffic reports are still outstanding and concern about the project bordering the Historic District has been raised.

The Bethel Park Apartments developers, Gleichman & Company of Portland, have been re-scheduled to come before the planning board on July 25.

Items on the planning board agenda for the Thursday night meeting include requests for advisory opinions from the Bread and Butter Bake Shop and from the Bethel Farmers' Market; review of a site plan application from Bethel Area Health Center; discussions on temporary signs and escrow accounts; and review of site plan application fees.

GAMM II workers to get federal aid

"I was terrified," said Carolyn Berryment, when she learned that GAMM II was to close, but the March closing of the Bethel clothing manufacturer may turn out to have been a blessing in disguise for Berryment and many of her co-workers.

An estimated 67 workers who were employed at GAMM II were certified Thursday as having been negatively impacted by foreign imports, making them the sixth group of Maine textile workers in the last year to become eligible for federal Trade Adjustment Assistance.

Employees who worked at GAMM II Inc. producing women's slacks and skirts between March 2, 1989, and April 2 of this year will be eligible for job training, job search, relocation, and extended unemployment benefits, according to Ted Fitzgerald, spokesman for the New England office of the U.S. Department of Labor.

For Berryment, the federal aid means a chance at a new career. She had been employed at GAMM for 3½ years when it closed its doors, and with only a high school education her job projects were not bright.

"It looked like the only thing available would be McDonalds or Burger King," she said.

But now, when her older child enters school in September, his mom will also be headed to the classroom—to the University of Maine at Augusta, where she will study for a degree in businss education.

Berryment and her fellow workers follow in the footsteps of 12 employees at Eastland Woolen Mills Inc. in Clinton and Orono who became eligible for benefits in May; 92 at Eastland's Corinna plant in February; an unspecified number at Bates Fabrics Inc. in Lewiston in July 1989; and 143 at Van Baallen Pacific in

Hall-Dale ends Telstar championship hopes

The ride back from Farmingdale is becoming a long one for Telstar sport teams.

In November of last year, the Telstar field hockey team journeyed to to Hall-Dale High School to take on Winthrop for the Maine Class C Championship, and the Rebels came away on the wrong end of a heartbreaking 1-0 sudden-death overtime score.

On Saturday the Rebels returned, as the softball team challenged Hall-Dall in Western Maine Class C semifinal action. Many members of the softball squad had played key roles on the field hockey team, but, sadly, they met the same fate on the softball diamond as they had on the hockey field—again falling by a single tally.

The Rebels managed only four hits against the host Bulldogs, but were in the battle until a two-out, bases-loaded rally in the seventh inning fizzled.

Earlier in the game it looked like the score would be far more uneven, as the steady hitting Bulldogs built up a 4-0 lead after three innings.

But when the home team threatened to score again in the fourth inning, an exciting Telstar double play shut the door on them and seemed to ignite the previously dormant Rebel offense.

The Rebels tapped out three back-to-back singles in the top of the fifth, and, helped along by a couple of wild pitches and an errant throw, jumped out to a 6-4 lead.

But the two run margin was not enough. The Bulldogs—who scored in every inning but the fourth—came back to tie the game in the fifth and to take a one run lead in the sixth.

With the Rebels once again unable to generate an offense, that slim lead held up, and the Bulldogs came away with a one-run victory and the right to play for the Western Maine Class C crown.

The Rebels finished their season with a 12-6 record, but with only three seniors lost to graduation, they figure to be a strong play-off contender again next year.

Bethel selectmen need to get organized

Thirteen weeks have passed since Charlie Nielsen first went into Bethel Town Manager Rodney Lynch's office to ask about having the skateboarding ban lifted in Bethel's village area.

Nielsen said he wanted to get the issue rolling at the start of the season this year.

At the rate the selectmen are progressing, the issue may well drag out all summer.

A request to lift, even partially, the ban on skateboarding is a relatively simple decision: Hear the request, ask the police chief for a report, schedule a public hearing—and act. It could be over and done with in two or three selectmen's meetings.

So why the delay?

It might be that the selectmen are purposely dragging their feet. We don't think so.

It might be that the selectmen don't care. We don't think so.

What we think is that the skateboarding issue, like nearly all other issues that come before the Bethel selectmen, is being needlessly dragged out and complicated.

The selectmen wonder why people don't show up at their meetings, why they don't participate more in the town government process. The skateboard issue is an excellent and clear example of why people stay away. When even relatively simple things become bogged down and take forever to reach conclusion, people get frustrated, angry, lose interest.

Compared with many other towns in this state, Bethel may be unique in how long and drawn out and complicated issues, and discussion around issues, becomes.

The problem in Bethel is a problem of organization and procedure. The meeting agenda should hold the key:

1. Call the meeting to order.
2. Accept the minutes of the previous meeting.
3. Hear public comments or concerns.
4. New business.
5. Old business.
6. Adjourn.

The first three items are self-explanatory.

New business, then, should include topics which are introduced, discussed briefly and set for action at a subsequent and specified meeting. This will give the selectmen time to get the information they need, whether specific data or citizen input, to make a decision. This will also give the public an opportunity to learn of the upcoming item and plan to attend the subsequent meeting. New business should also include matters brought to the selectmen's attention during public comments. Only in rare and emergency cases should an item be decided under new business.

Under old business, the selectmen should open each item with a positive motion, as required by good parliamentary procedure. Only then should discussion on the item begin. And that discussion should include citizen questions and comment. The selectmen should come to the meeting prepared to act on old business items. They should have done their homework and should be ready to decide.

Only in this way will the Bethel selectmen's meetings become an organized, orderly process which invites citizen participation. Only in this way will issues be settled in a timely and clear manner.

FROM THE
Bethel Town Office

On Wednesday, June 13, the Town will hold its annual Town Meeting at the Telstar auditorium at 7 p.m.

In my last column I explained some of the more important issues that will be facing the voters at the meeting. I will be doing the same in this week's column.

In past Town Meetings, the voters were presented with a net budget to vote on. However, commencing with this year's Town Meeting, the voters will instead be acting upon a gross budget.

The Town auditors have long recommended that we change over from a net budget to a gross budget. Under a net budgeting system the voters were only given the opportunity to vote on that portion of the total Town budget that would be raised by property taxes but not on the remaining part of the budget that would be financed from other revenues such as state revenue sharing and state road assistance.

For example: At last year's Town Meeting the Townspeople voted to raise $216,161 by taxation for the Public Works Department whereas the actual or gross budget for the Department for FY90 was $275,469. The difference was made up from such revenues as state road assistance.

We feel that the gross budget system is a better reflection of actual town expenditures, is easier to understand and virtually eliminates the need for carrying forward unexpended balances in the various departmental accounts.

At the Town Meeting the voters will be asked to approve the purchase of two pieces of equipment: a new one-ton replacement dump truck with plow and hopper sander and a new fire truck.

The new one-ton truck with plow and sander would be used in the village along with the grader for plowing. As a result, the larger sander can be released for quicker use for the outlying roads. Presently, there is $10,000 in the Public Works Reserve Truck Account which will be put towards the purchase of a new one-ton truck. As a result the amount to be appropriated at Town Meeting will be $20,000.

When delivered, the present 1978 one-ton truck will be sold and the proceeds placed in the Truck Reserve Account.

The Budget Committee disapproved the purchase of a new replacement one-ton truck in favor of repairing and running the old truck until it becomes inoperable.

In order to keep the one-ton running for another year it will be necessary to repair the rust to the door bottoms and rocker panels, install two new front fenders, put in four new door hinges, repair the floor boards and right-side cab mount, sandblast the rear dump box, install new helper springs and perform painting work. The estimated cost is $1,610.

The new fire truck that the Fire Department is requesting the town to purchase is a 1990 combined tanker/pumper. The tank will hold 2,000 gallons of water and the vehicle will be a ten-wheeler. Upon the delivery of the new fire truck the present 1966 International tanker will be sold. The cost of the new fire truck is $170,000 and it will be financed in the form of a $135,000 loan at six percent from the Farmers Home Administration for a five-year period. The remaining $35,000 will come from the reserve account that was established for the purchase of a new fire truck.

By state law, Bethel must construct a salt/sand storage shed by Jan. 1, 1997. It is estimated that the building will cost between $150,000-$200,000.

Both the selectman and the budget committee have requested we begin to set aside funds now in order to meet the 1997 deadline.

At the meeting the voters will be asked to join the Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corporation and to appropriate $17,000 to pay our share of the initial capital and operating costs for the group's recycling grant the corporation is applying for.

If a recycling grant is received, Bethel will receive, at no cost, six green boxes for the collection of recyclables and individual home recycling containers. In addition the corporation will collect and bale cardboard and provide outlets for our recycable materials. Participation in the Oxford County group will help enable us to meet the state mandate for recycling 25 percent of our waste material by 1992.

In summary, I would like to extend my personal thank you to the selectmen and budget committee for the thorough job they did in preparing the Fiscal Year 1990 budget.

As a result of their efforts to contain spending and to provide us with a no-frills, conservative spending town government, they were able to keep our taxes down, as the proposed FY91 budget only provides for a 3.85 percent increase over the FY90 gross budget.

Unfortunately, because the other levels of government (state, county, school district) operate with more of an open-wallet policy, local property taxes will be going up next year.

During the past week or so you may have noticed a surveying crew working in the village area. The crew is from the engineering firm of A.E. Hodsdon of Waterville. They are preparing the plans and cost estimates for the construction of new sewer lines, storm drains and water mains in the downtown village area. As readers are aware, the town is applying for a community development grant from the state to help pay for these improvements.

In closing, on behalf of the citizens of Bethel, Bethel Board of Selectmen and myself, I wish to extend our sincere appreciation to Patricia Dooen for her nine years of service to the Town of Bethel as one of our outstanding selectmen.

During her years on the board Dooen never hesitated to express her opinions; was a well-respected spokesman for the Bethel taxpayer; and, perhaps most importantly, she often lead the fight for a quality educational system at a price the taxpayers could afford.

In addition, Dooen was involved in making tough decisions on a number of controversial issues such as the sewage plant upgrade work. For all of these things she is to be congratulated for a job well done.

LUPUS SUPPORT GROUP

To the Editor:

Can you imagine what it would be like to have to live daily with the knowledge that you had a disease that could cause your body to slowly self-destruct? Some authorities are now saying that as many as three million people do have such a disease, and for some unidentified reason the number is growing. An estimated 55,000 new cases of systemic lupus erythematosus (SLE) are being diagnosed in the United States each year. SLE is a chronic connective tissue disease involving the body's immune system. In SLE the immune system, which is supposed to protect the body against environmental and infectious agents, turns against itself and attacks and destroys healthy tissue.

Ninety percent of lupus patients are women, with the usual age of on set being between 16 and 30.

NEWRY COMMUNITY DAY

To the Editor:

As chairman of Maine Street '90 in Newry, I would like to thank the Recreation Committee and all who helped make the Community Day a smashing success.

The Recreation Committee has made a great effort to make my job as chairman much easier. Also, I want to thank all who participated in the events. It is always scary to plan an event and not know how many will show up—this time there were over 100 attending. Great!

AMERICAN FLAG BACKSTAGE

To the Editor:

Stands above the Backstage my most prized material possession, the symbol of our country—an American Flag, 38 feet by 20 feet. And I couldn't be more proud.

I have wanted a flag such as this for a very long time and I would still be wanting it if it were not for the dedication and donated time given by Arnol Brown and Joes (plural) Beauchesne.

They gave tirelessly of time and talent and, if it were not for these three gentlemen, the flag that flies would still be just a want instead of a reality.

The job did take the help of a large number of people but because of the risk of forgetting someone I'll just thank them as a group.

I hope the townspeople enjoy the flag as much as I do and some will be pleased to know that it is partially in answer to reasonable objections to the Backstage erecting a sign on the building.

To any who would complain about the flag, all I can say is, "oh well".

WHY RETURN TO MAINE?

To the Editor:

Rising early, greeting the new day, I went out on my porch, hot, black coffee in hand, to view the wonders of this place apart from the world, my pond.

Mist hung over the mountains that surround the pond as if undecided to leave. Curling up in my mother's old wicker rocker, the morning awoke along with me.

I glanced toward the sundial and spotted a baby otter as it scurried about for food. As quickly as it came it retreated to the pond a few feet away. Facinated, I watched a chipmunk feast on the bird seed I had put out the night before.

I could feel my dog nuzzle up to me and beg to go out. Not this morning, Sir Brett; this morning I want to enjoy the little creatures. He seemed to understand and curled up on the rug beside me.

Now Timothy Tiptoes (resident squirrel) had taken Charlie Chippie's place and, after eating a great amount, seemed to stare right at me standing up on his hind legs.

Mr. and Mrs. Loon appeared from nowhere right in front of my door, as they do every year, as if to say good-morning.

Still in my robe, I went out as was my custom and waved to them, a silly gesture but somehow I like to think they knew me. Later they will glide by with baby loons on Mrs. Loon's back.

Sir Brett sat on his haunches taking it all in. Around him the little tit sparrows as well as the hummingbirds dashed in a frenzy to gather food I had left on the ledge. He is perhaps the only bird-dog alive who appreciates bird watching, not catching.

Another rustle to my right and the majestic Blue Heron swooped from his nest on my beach area to a rock he rather likes, not too far out. Regal, he posed, viewing the water, splashing with the flipflops of fish having fun, the wonder of the mountains and the creatures all about. Was he doing what I was—just appreciating the wonder of nature? Perhaps.

So why did I return to Maine? I think I have told you.

As chaperones for this class we commend them highly.

Project Graduation is a wonderful project. Many thanks to Fran Tyler and all the volunteers and committees that see that the grads have a chem-free environment for graduation night.

It is a project that everyone should participate in.

Many thanks to all. We had a great time.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

The June monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society was held in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House and featured a discussion of mining in the Bethel area.

Society Director Stanley R. Howe introduced the subject, expressing the goal of improving the Society's holdings on mining in Oxford County. He remarked that the Society at present possesses little on the subject and this meeting was an attempt to begin the process of collecting information on this important economic activity of the past and present. Howe recalled for the audience some of the local legends that have come down to present generations about mineral discoveries, particularly by Indians in the area. He noted that the first serious mining in Oxford County was probably done at Paris Hill on Mount Mica in the 1820s. Other discoveries were made through the years of gems, mica and feldspar.

Jim Mann, who operates the Mountain Mann shop on Main Street, acted as a resource person for the evening, detailing specific mines, their owners, when they began operations and what was mined.

Howe recalled for the audience the presence of the mica shop in the 1950s on Main Street, operated by the Wheeler brothers (now the site of the Bethel Savings Bank). He also mentioned the Berylium Corporation of Maine which once had offices in what is today the Timberlake house on Church Street.

During the business portion of the meeting, president Marvin Ouwinga announced that the next meeting would be held at the West Bethel Church grounds and inside if inclement, beginning at 6 p.m.

The program will feature a presentation by Jane Hosterman and Connie Vautour on the history of Old Route 2. The president thanked all who made the 11th annual Faye Taylor Memorial Art Show a great success and invited all those attending the meeting to view the student's work which was based on this year's theme "Everyday Life in the Past."

Dr. Ouwinga announced that the 1990 Dr. Moses Mason Award, given each year by the Society for the best high school essay on local history, had been awarded to Debbie Barker for her work on the history of the Bethel Fire Department.

The Gift of the Month was a copy of Randall H. Bennett's latest genealogical study of the Fifield family.

Bryant Pond man arrested Friday for terrorizing

A Bryant Pond man, arrested on warrants early Friday morning and then additionally charged by authorities, was held in custody Friday afternoon after bail set on previous charges was revoked in Androscoggin County Superior Court.

Philip Smith was arrested Friday by State Police Trooper Richard A. McAllister on warrants charging him with terrorizing the Bryant Pond code enforcement officer on May 30 and with violation of bail.

After his arrest Friday morning, Smith was also charged with assaulting an officer at the Oxford County Jail at South Paris.

During testimony Friday afternoon on the state's motion for revocation of bail, it was alleged that Smith bit the arm of Oxford County Corrections Officer Bruce Gordon when efforts were made to fingerprint him at the county jail during the booking process.

Justice Donald G. Alexander revoked the $25,000 bail previously set by Justice Thomas E. Delahanty II on charges of kidnapping with a firearm, aggravated assault and reckless conduct with a dangerous weapon.

At that time a court order directed that he not commit further violations of law.

The violation of bail charge on which he was arrested Friday morning grew out of that order.

During Friday's hearing, there was testimony in which it was alleged that Smith, in an incident last Sept. 25, repeatedly rammed his car into another vehicle, causing estimated damage of $2,000 to the second vehicle.

It was as the result of these three charges that the $25,000 bail was set.

Under questioning by District Attorney Janet T. Mills, Gordon and McAllister related the facts of the arrest and the later incident at the county jail.

Defense counsel Valeria Stansill repeatedly objected to testimony related to last year's alleged episodes on the grounds they were not part of the action before the court and Friday's events. Her objections were overruled by Alexander.

Stansill emphasized that in past incidents when he was being sought by law enforcement officers, Smith had turned himself in to authorities.

Train 'run-by' at Railroad St.

By CHRISTY CROSS

The St. Lawrence & Atlantic Railroad staged a special passenger excursion and freight train 'run-by' Saturday and Sunday in Bethel.

The passenger excursion, sponsored by the 470 Railroad Club of Portland, was the first in nine years to run on the former Grand Trunk Railroad track, according to Emmons Lancaster, a 470 Club trustee and an officer of the St. Lawrence & Atlantic Railroad.

Also, Lancaster said, "This is the first passenger excursion under the new (shortline) ownership." Lancaster said Emons Holdings bought the 165-mile St. Lawrence & Atlantic in May, 1989.

He said the railroad runs through-freight between Danville Jct. and Montreal.

The passenger excursion on Saturday left Portland at 7:30 a.m. and passed through Bethel, Gorham and into Berlin before reversing direction and coming back through Bethel around 1 p.m.

While in Bethel, the excursion cars, hauled by Engine #1758, pulled off the main track onto the siding near the corner of Railroad Street and Lower Main Street for the 40 mph run-by of the freight train.

According to Lancaster, 180 people, both club members and the general public, traveled on the excursion Saturday. He said tickets were $50 per person.

The excursion was repeated on Sunday, departing from South Paris instead of Portland.

THE ST. LAWRENCE & ATLANTIC freight train, traveling at 40 mph, rushes past Engine #1758 and its passenger cars on the siding at Railroad Street in Bethel last Saturday as train buffs train their cameras on the event. Until Saturday it had been nine years since a passenger excursion has run through Bethel. U.S. Senate passes Caribou-Speckled bill

The Senate approved a bill last week to establish a Caribou-Speckled Mountain Wilderness Area in western Maine. The measure, passed by unanimous consent, was sponsored by Senators Bill Cohen and George Mitchell.

"We are very pleased that the Senate has acted expeditiously on this bill, which we believe will bring the most balanced use of this national forest area in Maine," the Senators said in a joint statement. "Those who desire to hike and camp in the forest in relative solitude will have that opportunity, but the tradition of forest products industries having access to public timber will continue."

The bill would designate a 12,000-acre wilderness area in the White Mountain National Forest and release an additional 4,000 acres to multiple use, including timber harvesting. It also authorizes continued state regulation of fish and game activity in the area and allows the Forest Service to take appropriate measures to control fire, insects and disease in the wilderness area.

A similar House version, sponsored by Maine Reps. Olympia Snowe and Joseph Brennan, has been approved by the Interior Committee and is awaiting action in the House Agriculture Committee.

The delegation held a 1987 public hearing on the issue in Bethel and there has been an extensive public comment period.

In 1986, the Forest Service issued the White Mountain National Forest Plan, a 10-year management proposal for more than 600,000 acres in New Hampshire and a portion of western Maine.

This area included a 16,000-acre roadless section in Maine that was eligible for wilderness designation, but the Forest Service recommended that only 12,000 acres actually be studied for its wilderness potential.

Andover Selectmen again discuss holding special town meeting

By BARABARA ADAMS

The selectmen once again last week discussed holding a special town meeting to decide whether to build an addition onto the Town Office or to renovate the Town Hall to use as the Town Office.

Townspeople debated the question at length at the Annual Town Meeting in March, without coming to a resolution.

The selectmen decided at their last regular meeting to ask Everett Mayberry to draw up specifications and a blueprint for the addition. If the plan submitted by Mayberry is approved by the selectmen, he will be paid $250.

The selectmen have already received a plan for the proposed Town Hall renovation from Dave Hawkes. Once the selectmen have plans for both the addition and the renovation of the Town Hall to be offered to the residents, the next question is the necessity for a special Town Meeting to resolve the matter.

Chairman Fred Emerson said, "The town office addition (if not acceptable to the voters) should have been voted out at the regular Town Meeting. It wouldn't be built this year anyway. It is not a pressing issue for a special Town Meeting. I haven't seen much interest in the town over this matter."

Selectman Brian Mills disagreed, saying that he believes public opinion seems to be for renovation of the Town Hall to accommodate a town office. He said a special Town Meeting should be held, citing the opinion of town clerk Kathy Williamson that such a meeting is mandated.

Selectman William Maselli pointed out the need to accept bids on both projects prior to any future Town Meeting, special or not, and whether town office specifications and bids on either project could be obtained in time for a special Town Meeting should it be held.

The selectmen finally agreed to contact the Maine Municipal Association to determine, regardless of the amount of public interest on the topic, whether they are obliged to have the special Town Meeting when they had told the Annual Town Meeting audience they would have a chance to vote on the article.

The selectmen are judging the entries for the "What Andover Means to Me" essay contest they are sponsoring with the winners to be announced at Honors Night at Andover School on June 13. The time of these festivities has been changed from 7 to 6 p.m. by principal Karen Robinson.

A stonemason will be contacted for an estimate on an area in the cemetery to be defined by the selectmen for renovation. In other cemetery business, three bids were opened for the services of a cemetery sexton and the selectmen voted on one portion of a bid submitted by Ed Robinson, that he be hired at $300 per month for six months out of each year for cemetery maintenance.

Robinson, who had asked for this amount per month from April through November, will be contacted to see if he agrees with the change and record keeping and internment assistance will also be discussed with him at that time.

The selectmen are seeking bids on 3,500 yards of screened sand, with the bid deadline of June 19. Also sought is a bid on scraping and painting of the Town Hall, with the quality of the paint to be reviewed by the selectmen.

Acceptance of a fuel bid has been tabled until the possibility of a possible tax rebate on fuel provided by the present supplier has been determined.

An East Andover resident will be notified via certified mail that he has 30 days to provide a fence around his swimming pool, with state regulations specifying a daily fine of up to $500 per day if he does not comply.

Assessor Michael Austin will be contacted for an estimate on assessing personal property to update a 1988 list on record.

Steve Swasey was granted permission to grade Wentzell Road.

Dog owners will be notified by certified letter from dog officer Calvin Baker to have their dogs licensed, with further action to be taken by the board for noncompliance.

There have been complaints from the dump custodian that out-of-towners with illegal stickers have been using the dump. Such violators will not be allowed in the dump.

Waitin' Gov

Sam Timberlake has managed to set up his own meeting with DEP enforcement officials, who are scheduled to tour the site Thursday, June 14.

Bethel Town Manager Rodney Lynch (who is concerned about fire hazards at the Greenwwood site) said the meeting was set up at Timberlake's initiative, not as the result of any help from the governor.

Timberlake has also written to the Gordons' lawyer demanding that operations at the site be stopped until Gordon obtains a permit from the town.

Local educators to attend seminar

Theodore Davis, Principal of Telstar Regional High School, and Catherine Newell, Director of Adult and Community Education for SAD #44, have been invited to participate in The Select Seminar on The Status of Educational Change in Maine, sponsored by MaineLEAD, the Maine Leadership Consortium.

The Select Seminar, composed of 30 people who each represent an approach to making change in schools, met for its initial session on May 8 to prepare for a three-day working session on June 27, 28, and 29.

By MARTA CLEMENTS

All classes are wrapping up units in a variety of subject areas. All classes are preparing for our Curriculum Fair. All classes are looking forward to our field day and our end of the year activities.

The kindergarten and first grades enjoyed a visit from Charlotte Mayo, a local author. Ms. Mayo read stories from her original manuscripts and recited one of her published poems.

A favorite story of the children was "Buttercup, the Butterfly". Mrs. Loper's students used that idea to write their own butterfly stories.

The second graders have finished their math book, "Math in Stride," and are working hard to finish up Level II in the individual math skills program.

Charity Weiss, Becky Chase, Mary Fox, Jessie Skinner and Misty Coffin finished up their reading book and performed very well on their end of level test. Congratulations girls.

One small group activity that aids in visual discrimination involves finding hidden pictures. David Hemphill is the champ and found all the hidden pictures.

The third graders are working hard on their cursive writing. They are learning the difficult "le" words in spelling and they are continuing to work on their map skills.

Fourth graders are studying the Pacific Region. This is their final social studies area to be explored. Their final written book reports are due and they are working hard on their projects for the curriculum fair.

My fifth graders made their periscopes to wrap up our study of the paths of light. The children are experimenting on all the different things that can be viewed through a periscope.

Our final reading project, which will be going on these last two weeks, involves bringing in a favorite book from when they were little. We have had three read to the class so far and many fond memories are being evoked.

The sixth graders have finished their story of "The Forgotten Door" and have submitted written reports. Their final book report of the year will be an oral report.

In science they are doing environmental reports on plants and animals. The social studies presenters for the week are Chester Beauchesnes, Jason Bradeen and Arthur Campbell.

The Chapter I reading groups have enjoyed their Scrumptious Sundae party. All students earned their 200 points and celebrated with ice cream.

The sixth grade group also sponsored a mystery book hunt this past month. Clues were posted all over the school. Students were encouraged to figure out what each clue meant and where to find the next clue. When all clues were deciphered the detectives had solved the mystery which turned out to be the title of a good mystery story to read.

Our home/school counselor, Mr. Grigsby, took a small group of children up to Berry's ledge for a picnic this week. They could look down on our school and said we looked like ants playing in the school yard.

Let me close with a reminder for parents to be on the watch for lots of notes, flyers, pamphlets, etc. to be coming home in book bags.

Rank cards will be coming home with the students on the last day, Friday, June 15.

SAD #44 grades 5-8 math teams compete at USM

Teams of SAD #44 students in grades 5-8 recently competed in a math meet at USM which was sponsored by the university's Department of Mathematics. Approximately 100 teams from the southern half of the state competed and filled two gymnasiums.

Several awards were won by SAD #44 students. The fifth grade team placed third as a team. Members were Fred and Daniel Emerson from Andover Elementary school, Darby Hickey and John Mannel from Woodstock Elementary School, and Clint Myers and Amos Hausman-Rogers.

Anneliese Bass from Telstar Middle School and Ian Richardson from Andover tied for first place at the sixth grade level. Seventh graders also placed: Leah Richardson, second, and Kendra Hutchinson, third.

Other seventh graders on the team were Nancy Morgan, Tim Remington, Steve Hammel, Kevin Mullens.

CPS students win scholarships to Maine Conservation School

Karen Wheeler and Cathy Morgan have been announced winners of an environmental essay/poster contest for Crescent Park School fifth graders. They have been awarded scholarships to a one week summer program at the Maine Conservation School.

The funds for the scholarships were derived from the sale of Earth Day T-shirts. This project was spearheaded by Uel Gardner and Kirk Siegel of Gould Academy, with t-shirt design by Lauren Head. Walter Hatch of the Bethel Conservation Commission arranged the scholarship contest in conjunction with Linda Wheeler and other Crescent Park teachers and staff.

At the Conservation School, Karen and Kathy will live for five days and study the natural resources of Maine under field conditions. Topics such as water, soils, forestry and wildlife are covered. The Conservation School's objective is to foster through education a sense of individual responsibility for conservation of our natural resources.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS—Crescent Park School fifth graders Karen Wheeler and Cathy Morgan, displaying Earth Day T-shirts, have each won a Bethel Conservation Commission scholarship to the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond. The girls won the scholarships with their entries in the commission's environmental essay/poster contest. Also pictured are Earth Day 1990 T-shirt project coordinators Kirk Seigal, left, Lauren Head, who also designed the T-shirt, and Uel Gardner, right, and Linda Wheeler, the girls' grade five science teacher.

BUILDING BRIDGES—Ben Fogg and Amanda Sysko are two of the students who participated in the sixth grade math project, learning math by building bridges, at Telstar Middle School this spring.

Sixth graders learn math by constructing bridges

A sixth grade math class at Telstar Middle School recently completed a bridge project. The unit was developed by Linda Davis, math teacher, and was cooperatively taught by Mrs. Davis and Carol Nielsen, F.O.C.U.S. teacher.

The project began with a field trip to see the various types of bridges in Rumford. The trip was led by Jim Sysko, who discussed various types of bridges and how they were constructed. Later, students did further research on bridges. Each student designed his or her own bridge and prepared a cost estimate and a verbal description to present to the "Davisville" selectmen.

The selectmen awarded the bid to Ben Fogg. Each student bought materials (paper, straws and pins), constructed his or her bridge and learned how to use a spread sheet on the computer to keep track of their expenses.

Students also learned check writing skills in order to pay themselves a wage as well as the profit and to pay for their bridge materials.

Amanda Sysko's bridge held the most weight—1,500 grams. Hillary Harrison received a certificate for research. Other students who received a certificate were Amanda Gilbert, Leah Bonnema, Cindy Wheeler, Jessica Coolidge, Andy Davis, Alex Gillies, Clinton Wakefield, Heidi Blake, Nate NcVey, Cailin Kavanagh, Brandi Brooks, Jarrod Crockett and Erin Kailey.

N.H.S. names Telstar Students of the Month

The senior student of the month is Nathan Miserocchi, son of John and Betty Miserocchi of Andover. Nathan was recognized by his AP English teacher Mrs. Taylor. Mrs. Taylor cites Nathan for taking the time to read a difficult novel that he didn't have to read, after the AP exams were over.

The junior student of the month is Meri Howe, daughter of Clayton and Joyce Howe of Bryant Pond. Meri was nominated by her band instructor Mr. Davis. Mr. Davis recognizes Meri for her many achievements and accomplishments. Meri has been an exceptional music student ever since she became involved with the district music program. This year she performed with the All New England Band, The Mountain Valley Music Festival Band, and The Maine Music Educators All-State Orchestra. This selection places her in the top of the ranks of musicians in the state, the top three among flute players. Meri is also active in the many other musical aspects of the band program.

The sophomore student of the month is Amy Hannon, daughter of Daniel and Sally Hannon of Gilead. Amy was nominated by her CP Biology teacher Mr. Roy. Mr. Roy recognizes Amy for the maximum effort that she has put in this year on all of her assignments. This quarter she received A's on all of the work she has done.

The NHS would like to congratulate all Students of the Month and thank all of the teachers who took the time to nominate these hard working students.

Search on for top Maine Tree Farmer

That local Tree Farmer who grows a healthy stand of trees, welcomes school children and others onto his lot and maintains open space for the community could be eligible for state, regional and national awards.

The Maine Tree Farm Committee, in conjunction with the Maine Forest Service and Maine Forest Products Council, is encouraging Tree Farmers and members of the forestry community to nominate candidates for the 1991 Outstanding Tree Farmer Contest.

Interested individuals can nominate a Tree Farmer by calling the Maine Forest Service at 289-2791 or 1-800-367-0223. The deadline for nominations is July 2.

Tree Farm is co-sponsored in Maine by the Maine Forest Products Council, the Maine TREE Foundation and the Maine Farm Bureau, and nationally by the American Forest Council. Those green and white signs displayed by Tree Farmers are the sign of good forestry.

'Sunday River to the Sea' bicyclists to set off Friday

Maine's largest bicycle ride is set to begin from the Sunday River Ski Resort on Friday, June 15, at 10 a.m.

Over 525 cyclists are expected to be riding the roads from "Sunday River to the Sea" according to Trek Director Peter King. The trek, a benefit for the American Lung Association of Maine, will have a core of approximately 50 volunteers who will support the riders.

"Our preparations for this event are incredible—three quarters of a ton of bananas, 3,000 granola bars and 1,500 gallons of Crystal Spring Water are just a few of the items necessary to support hungry and thirsty bicyclists," says King.

The majority of the participants are from Maine, but riders will be from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and as far away as Colorado.

The American Lung Association of Maine is cautioning motorists planning on traveling the trek route to seek alternate travel plans, to avoid possible delays for the short time the bicyclists will be on the roads.

The participants will be spending Friday night, June 15, at the University of Maine in Farmington and Saturday night at Colby College. The finish is planned for Sunday, June 17, at the TradeWinds in downtown Rockland. For more information on the trek call the American Lung Association of Maine at 1-800-462-LUNG.

Wildcat Mountain to offer free gondola rides June 17

Wildcat Gondola Skyride and Recreation Area welcomes residents of Carroll and Coos Counties in New Hampshire and Oxford County in Maine for free rides on Sunday, June 17 (Father's Day).

The Gondola Skyride travels 6,800 feet, climbs 2,100 feet in elevation and takes about 12 minutes, each direction.

Gondola riders have as much time at the summit as they want; there are trails to explore, two observation decks and picnic areas. Some people decide to hike down Wildcat's two and three quarter mile Polecat Trail for exercise and a closer look at the scenery.

In order to qualify for the free gondola rides, Coos, Carroll and Oxford county residents must be able to show proof of residency (e.g., drivers license, voter registration or school report card).

Wildcat spokesperson Ellen Chandler said, "The free gondola rides are our way of thanking the surrounding community for the support they give Wildcat and the tourist business all year round. We hope to see lots of local people in Pinkham Notch on Father's Day; and be sure to bring a camera."

SAD #44 Adult Education graduates 19

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program held graduation ceremonies on June 4 at the Bethel Inn Conference Center attended by over 250 friends and family members of the 19 graduates in the Class of 1990.

Clayton Blood of the Maine Department of Educational and Cultural Services was the graduation speaker.

He praised the graduates for their determination in seeking a "second chance" to complete high school and acknowledged the support of their families in making it possible for goals to be accomplished.

Focusing on the theme of "Opportunities," Blood announced the new scholarships available for adult diploma and GED graduates through a program established by Maine businesses, the university system and the technical colleges.

He concluded his remarks by asking all present to encourage others to take the first step toward a return to school.

Diplomas and GEDs were awarded by SAD #44 Board Chairman Margaret Hand of Bryant Pond. Sixteen of the 19 graduates were present to receive their diplomas.

The graduates are: Timothy Angevine, Lennie Bishop, Travis Buck, Darren Cross, Michael Gilbert, Lisa Jodrey, Larry Roderick, Peter Scotti, Leslie Thurston, Robert Bates, Clyde Brooks, Robert Corriveau, Doreen Dyke, Tina Hanson, Angela Martin, Peter Roshto, Richard Sprague, Toby Walker and Tammy Ward.

Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell and instructors Fidelis Taylor, Ed Robinson and Rockie Graham presented books to all the graduates, highlighting each presentation with reminiscences of the individual graduates. Music was provided by Ruth Silver and a brief reception followed the ceremonies.

The Adult Education Class of 1991 is already forming, as GED testing is ongoing throughout the summer, according to Adult Education Director Cathy Newell. Anyone who would like information about GED programs or brush-up work in English or math may contact the Adult and Community Education office at Telstar High School, 824-2780.

Telstar's OSLC course final a success

The students who enrolled in the Outdoor Skills Leadership Challenge (OSLC) course at Telstar recently completed their course final, a three-day canoe trip on the East Branch of the Penobscot River.

The canoe program aspect of the course started with a whitewater canoe instructional section lasting approximately one month.

After completing the whitewater component the students applied their newly acquired skills on a whitewater canoe trip where the students ran the show.

For the next two days the temperature was in the 30s and the spitting snow continued. The second day of the trip both groups did five portages ranging from a quarter-mile to three-quarter miles, and a number of intimidating yet do-able rapids.

A couple of boats did capsize, however the students set up a river safety system using rescue throw ropes and rescue canoes and as a result the capsized boaters were easily rescued. They were a little wet and cold but ready to continue.

The last day of the program brought sunshine, warmth and the end of a challenging yet fun canoe program.

Upon returning to Telstar many students were commenting on the number of portages everyone had accomplished. One thing led to another and OSLC students Pat Feeney and Rick Matteson were challenged to portage a canoe from Telstar to the railroad tracks in town and back again.

Some people driving on Route 26 might have seen two people, each carrying a canoe.

Both Pat and Rick completed their challenge with relative ease. Rick jogged the last 30 yards. It just goes to show you that once you put your mind to something you can achieve success.

RT. 26 PORTAGE—Telstar Outdoor Skills Leadership Course student Pat Feeney demonstrates the portage form.

Pharmacy & Your Health

David Preble, Prim's Pharmacy

Largest Consumers of Medicines in U.S.

Seven out of 10 older persons take at least one prescription medicine every day. Recent surveys indicate that the elderly, as a group, are the largest consumers of medicines in the United States. There are several reasons why. For one thing, the elderly experience more illness – almost 80 percent have one or more chronic health conditions.

As an age group, the elderly are hospitalized more frequently than younger adults. Medicines prescribed for older individuals are often more complex and are used for longer periods than for most other groups.

Medicines most commonly prescribed for the elderly are used for high blood pressure, arthritis, heart conditions such as angina, and gastrointestinal problems.

Studies of nonprescription medicine use by the elderly indicate that the most frequently used categories include laxatives, pain relievers, vitamin and mineral supplements, eye drops, topical medicines for various skin conditions, and cough and cold medicines.

Elderly persons should exercise care in the prescription and nonprescription medicine they take since the chances of having medicine-related adverse effects is highest in their age group.

Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Services were held at the Newry Community Church Sunday, June 3, with Pastor Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and his daughter Nancy at the organ. The message was "Peter's Understanding." Peace to you all who belong to Christ. And Scripture readings from Genesis I: 1-2, Act 2: 14-36 and St. Luke I: 1-12.

The Newry Community Church Ladies Circle had their meeting Monday night June 4 at Freda Robertson's residence, President Olive Anderson opened the meeting with devotions by all the members. Secretary-treasurer Freda read the notes of the last meeting and reported on the finances up to date. A card was sent to a member who is home from the hospital after an operation. Election of officers was conducted with Olive resigning the presidency and Sylvia Wight taking over with Gilberte Seeley as vice-president and Freda remaining as secretary-treasurer. Plans were made to go to dinner on July 9. A gift of a silver bracelet was given to Olive for being such a good and active president for the past few years. The meeting was adjurned and coffee and goodies were enjoyed with a game of Lotto in the social hour. Next meeting will be at Olive's house on July 2 at 7:30. We welcome new members. Calenders are still for sale at the reduced price of $1, year of 1990 and 1991. Please contact Sylvia Wight if interested in buying them.

Community Day was celebrated June 3 at the Newry Town Building with barbecues, races, ballgames, etc. A good time was had by the large crowd who came to enjoy the day of Maine Street '90.

Celebrate Father's Day, June 17, by giving him a hug and tell him you love him.

The Newry Ladies who bowl "for fun" at the Oxford Lanes in Rumford were: Betsy Clark, Karlene Bachelder, Sylvia Wight and Gil Seeley. Betsy was high on the singles with one string of 103 and another of 111, she also was high on the triples with a score of 306. Sylvia joined the One Hundred Club with one string of 104. All went to lunch and did some shopping.

Donald and Cora Tetley of West Warwick, R.I. spent a few days with Louise and Norman Tetley and helped Norman with his garden. They took rides up country and saw a few moose.

Lee and June Swan attended the graduation of their grandson Brent James Black from the New England Institute of Culinary Arts in Montpelier, Vt. where he received his Associate Degree. After graduation he left for California where he has a position as assistant chef at the Top of the Market Restaurant on the Bay in San Diego.

While earning his degree he has worked in Nantucket, Mass., St. Croix in the Virgin Islands and Stow, Vt.

He is the son of Janis Black of Newry and James Black of Barre, Vt.

Joe and Muriel Gilbert were in Lewiston this week.

After doing errands in Norway on Saturday, I visited Mary Mills in Bolster's Mills.

Although I haven't seen a moose crossing the field this year as I usually do, I have seen a doe at the edge of the field, a beautiful, red fox along the bank of Kendall Brook and a rabbit. Also some nocturnal animal has eaten part of the sage plant and tops of most of the lily-of-the-valley.

We had what is hoped to be the last frost of the spring last Wednesday morning.

June again with its fresh, lush green all over the valley. Vines are creeping, tendrils are displayed along the walls, while looking up beneath is the green, green grass. The rain has helped those things. Now we hope the sun will shine for awhile. it would be nice also to see the shadows crawl the mountains.

June, the month of many things; graduations, with a new start in life for many, weddings with lovely brides, roses and many other flowers.

"Thickly grow the tangled flowers along the river's edge, Sweetly twine through the lattice of the ledge." Patience Strong.

June, a time for wild strawberries.

June, with the haying season about to start; a time of growth, the beginning of summer.

The lily-of-the-valley is as sweet as the lilacs on the hill. I notice this as I move about the yard.

I always find something interesting in the out-of-doors. Nathaniel Hawthorne said, "Happiness is a butterfly, which, when pursued, is always just beyond your grasp but which, if you will sit down quietly, may light upon you."

Before the week is out I hope for a walk to see the lady-slippers.

Come join me some day,/As I wander the valley wild,/Observing favorite things I like/That make life worth while.

The Woodstock Historical Museum has a small collection of books on royalty. The museum has received a lovely old dress. There were 17 people at the museum on Memorial Day. The scope and depth of the Society collections is now quite impressive.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Monday, June 4, for its Memorial program, election of officers and inspection. Honored guests included Lewis and Myrtle Bisbee, State Deputies; Connie Tutlis, Deputy and Deaf Awareness; and Ruby Whitney, State C.W.A. There were 27 that attended. Family Reunion

The "Thurston's" get-together was held Saturday, June 2, at the home of Evelyn T. Bean. It was a backyard picnic and cookout. It was the descendents of the late Truewouthy and Rachel Welch Thurston of Rumford, who had six sons and two daughters who lived in the "Thurston district" in the late years of the 1860—the district being from the Ray H. Thurston home to Mt. Zircon. Each house in that district of Rumford was then owned by one of the Thurston's families. This is the first family reunion since 1980 when they were guest of Evelyn's. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Thurston of North Yarmouth, Mr. Roy H. Thurston of Rumford, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Tetley of Lincoln N.H., Mr. and Mrs. Ronald G. Thurston of Winthrop, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Adley, Rumford, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Enman of Rumford, Clarie Enman of Rumford, Mrs. Ellen T. Nuhealer of Bradford, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. John Ramsay of Hillsboro, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. David Demers and family of Henniker, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. Scott Withite, Hartford, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. David Ponelite of Canton, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Burgess of Lewsiton, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Thurston II and family of Yarmouth, Mrs. Carole T. Hockmyer of Henniker, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. Dane Trench of Warner, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. George Warchote and family of Yarmouth, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gauvin and family of Chemlsford, Mass. and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Roy of West Peru.

Northwest Bethel

Another mixed bag of weather. The first weekend of June was hot and muggy and before the week was out we had quite a little frost in places. People have told us that their tomato plants got nipped but haven't been killed. That is on this road; don't know about other places. June 5 and 6 were windy and rainy. June 7 was sunny, rainy and at times we had thundershowers.

Frank got home about suppertime, June 2. No fish but guess the weather wasn't that well suited for fishing. Mary Smith came in for a short visit in the morning, June 2.

June 3, Frank, I, Kristin and James William, George and "Frankie" went to Freeport to help celebrate our granddaughter Heather's eighth birthday. Her grandparents, Don and Mary Keefe of Sanford, were also there. They are near enough the coast so that they get a good sea breeze.

June 5 Karen and Sarah Page came for a visit and later Frankie, Karen and Sarah went to The Ocean Pearl in Oxford.

June 1, Frankie and George took me to Cisco and Poncho's for supper.

MaryBeth Hannon, daughter of Dan and Sally Hannon, and Brian Anderson, son of Steve and Pat Anderson, are the only two graduates that I know of on this road.

June 1, Gerry Shimamura was one of a group who went to the Chicken Coop, as Duffy Brooks is retiring from working on the Bethel School's food program (hot lunch).

June 2, Joe and Gerry Shimamura went to Gorham, N.H. to the wedding of Lynn Eastman to Michael Tremblay of Gorham, N.H., at the Methodist Church. Reception was at Town and Country. Lynn is the daughter of the Yokohoma owners.

Marge and Raymond Coleman of Mechanic Falls stopped in May 31 to George and Betty Gilbert's on the way back from a camping trip.

June 2, Carol Mason and niece Meridith Mason went to Andover to the Ellis River Riding Club. Carol received champion; riding Little Sandy Kiss, a little Palomino quarter horse.

Dr. Leonard Shaw and family enjoyed swimming at the Keniston camp at Songo.

Orial and Agee Deblois of Shelburne, N.H. made Alberta Angevine a call June 5.

Howard, Mackie and Nick Chapman had his nephew and niece, Brady and Hannah, stay the first weekend of June.

The Homer Smith's want to thank everyone who helped them hunt for their puppy. They finally called up Allen Hill Animal Shelter and found the puppy there.

MaryBeth and Amy Hannon, daughters of Dan and Sally Hannon, and Shilo and Misty Hutchins, daughters of Jeff and Elaine Hutchins, played in their first softball game of the state tournament June 5. They played against Old Orchard Beach and won.

Cassie Mason, daughter of Dr. John and Tracy Mason, went to Step-up Day for kindergarden June 1 at Crescent Park.

All people smile in the same language.

Dennis Casco was involved in a one car accident on Route 26, Wednesday, near the Town Garage. He left the road at a high speed, stopping upside down in the cattail swamp after shearing an electric light pole. He suffered a broken bone and bruises and was taken by ambulance to the hospital. The car was totaled. Traffic was stopped or detoured for some time.

Ron Jordan has arrived home following his back operation. He is happy to be back and looks well, but is still uncomfortable.

Last week's editorial explaining how the paper is set up was very interesting.

By LORRAINE MILLS

Well, I am back. I'm sorry I did not get the chance to let anyone know I was leaving to take care of my dad for awhile. The doctor had planned to put him in a short-term facility for a couple weeks after he left the hospital but for some reason that fell through and he just discharged him one day without warning. So I spent some time there with John joining me on the weekend. In the middle of all that Marcia came to stay for a while with dog, Cocoa, and cats, Jasper and Misty.

A couple days after I left Fryeburg she and I returned to take dad a present for his 85th birthday. He enjoys birds so we set him up a birdbath and planted flowers around it.

On the way home we stopped to see Frances Emerson in Stow. I haven't seen her in the last dozen years, I don't think. I used to live in the house she's in now when I was just a baby.

Then a couple days later we went with Marcia and Jon to the airport in Manchester, N.H. where they got a plane to spend a week in Florida locating an apartment. We brought their car back, got off the interstate to get gas, couldn't find our way back on and had an interesting ride through Concord and points north as we wandered our way homeward. I saw a lot of New Hampshire, but being dark, it was not very memorable. Finally at 2 a.m., when we should have been home in bed, I stopped at an all-night store and got a map and some directions. Since I don't care for interstate driving I never expected to be glad to see one but I sure was when we finally got back on to it. The rest of the drive was just a fight to keep alert. I didn't want to wake John because he'd worked all day and when he's sleepy he goes to sleep. He got into one accident and has gone off the road twice that way so its not a good idea for him to drive after 10 or 11. I don't go to sleep but my reactions are not good so I was glad we didn't have anyone else traveling near us. Marcia's car has a dimmer switch on the steering wheel, ours is on the floor—so coming into Gorham I meet a car and I'm trying to find the switch on the floor, belatedly remembering the switch is on the wheel column. I barely got the lights dimmed down and on came flashing blue lights. I figured I'd had it but he didn't stop me—just shut them off and went by. So, having woken up, John drove the rest of the way home and we fell into bed sometime after 4. We went back to pick Marcia and Jon up Thursday—got on the interstate and stayed there—all had a much pleasanter time.

High Street West Paris

By VIVA WHITMAN

It has been a rather nice but much cooler day today than the past few days. Russell was out in the garden trying to put out some remay, which is a cloth made especially to cover garden stuff growing. The wind blew so much that he was sure having trouble getting it down so I went out to help him get it onto the garden. Helps keep the bugs off the plants underneath it and it helps them grow.

Went to see Dr. Shedd last week as Dr. Jealous was gone.

Had spotted a woodchuck in the garden and Russell set some traps and finally got him but as I was looking out the window tonight, I saw another of those buggers. I've got to tell Russell so he can see if he can catch him also. They can ruin a garden fast when they get started and just love the nice young fresh greens.

Peggy went with Bertha Benoit to a party given to Principal David Murphy last Wednesday night. They had a good time and Peggy said the children had made lots of different things to present to him. Those items should remind him of his time there at Woodstock Elementary School for many years to come.

Thursday was a busy day for all of us around here. I got sandwich filling made for finger rolls for Wynona's Adult Education Graduation. Russell worked outside doing whatever he found needed doing, which included planting more seeds. Peggy had visitors as her daughter, Myrna, and husband, Whitey, came to visit her for a while. After they had gone home, she went out and helped Russell a while. Lawns were mowed before they called it quits for the night so they got a lot done.

Friday was another busy day as Peggy and I went to town to get groceries, etc. in the forenoon and in the afternoon, we filled 26 finger rolls and packed them ready to take to Auburn.

Russell did some planting and he was going to the three point meeting at Oxford so got all cleaned up and shiny ready to go when Lucy Robbins stopped to pick him up.

Peggy and I went to Auburn with the trunk of her car loaded and helped set up the table of foods for after the graduation and helped serve it as best we could. They didn't have as many guests as usual but a larger graduating class. Lots of sandwichs left over for folks to take home. One never knows how many to plan on for something like that. Russell got home a short time before we did but was still up to open doors for me.

Peggy and I hated to miss the three point meeting but we had promised Wynona when they decided to change the date of the meeting so not much we could do about it.

Saturday was Grange at South Paris and they wanted Peggy and Russell there so they went to the meeting in the afternoon to help with the obligation ceremony they were having. Got home and rested a little and went to West Paris to the dance. Would love to go if only I could dance but have sore feet and legs bother so can't do a jig so stay home.

After lunch on Sunday, Russell, Peggy and I went to Sunday River in Bethel to see the mansion that Tom is living in. His son, Jeff, has a mansion in the making and he is to live there for a while and help what he can. The place has so many wonderful things about it that one with an imagination could do beautiful things with it. Jeff has plans but has to have more money to finish it.

We had a lovely visit and Laura and Bernard Hutchins, of East Andover, came to visit Tom also. We hadn't been there too long when Pauline Kennison came to look at the place and visited with us all for a while. It was a real nice time for all of us.

Had to get up and get going on Monday as we went to Lake Saint George to see a lady on the macrobiotic diet and wanted to know what we were not doing right to get the results we need. Hopefully by following her instructions we will help ourselves where arthritis is concerned. We sure hope so anyway.

Got home and had supper and rested a little and then off to Grange at Bryant Pond for a meeting of election of officers. Not too many new ones but a few. It was our memorial program also so was a good meeting.

Talked with Mary Lovejoy and she said she had had new lettuce out of her garden. Lucky her. We will be having greens soon and have had some already because when he went to set out his greens he had one kind that he cut the tops off and we used them. They were so good. Didn't bother the plants at all. They have grown very well after he got them into the garden and it won't be long before we cut them again.

Mary was at the ballfield tonight as she had some kids playing in different games. She said she was half frozen from sitting and waiting.

There was a graduation party for her niece at Elias and Faylene McKeens this weekend and all had a good time.

Mary said she and husband were the only neighbors attending Roberta Whitman's funeral the other day. I never knew the lady but sympathize with her family at the loss.

Graduation coming up at Oxford Hills this Saturday and I think they picked the wrong day of the week. That is a busy night elsewhere and not a good one for the folks to attend graduation. However, may get there to see my grandson graduate if possible. It's the only high school graduation he will have so will give up my alumni banquet to go to it.

Take care one and all and have a good week ahead. Cold shouldn't last long.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Alice,

The daisies bloomed and I thought of you. I thought of all the times, when we were kids, that you shouted from the back seat, "Stop! I have to pick the daisies!". And Dad would stop at the edge of the field, the rest of us grumbling while you tumbled out of the car in pursuit of your cherished flowers.

You recently read a note in your N.Y. Times, about the shared experience of two sisters who long ago watched a dime roll out of reach into a windowsill crevice. Thirty years later one sister read of the razing of the old apartment building, sent the clipping to her sister in Kentucky, and then both of them had the telephone titters as they confessed that the first thing that came to mind was the lost dime... You sent that clipping to me and we then had the same risible recall of the nickel that we let slip between "B" and "Middle 'C'" on Muddy's piano when we were kids. The nickel was never retrieved, but the shared memory was when we both read the "dime" story.

Those shared memories are "the best argument for having a sibling," according to the Times writer. And she's right. Who else will appreciate as well the retelling of an experience from the "olden days"? Who but a sister and brother will not only tolerate, but encourage the reminiscence?

And with the collective memory of siblings, there's the ability to enjoy all over again the particular incident in cryptic form, as if it had happened just yesterday: Someone says, "home movies", and we all see you at 14, in your plaid dress and heels, as you repeat your famous "Fall from Grace"scene... Say, "Catalpa tree" and you see me hanging by my knees or hiding in the top branches as Muddy searches the property for me... Say, "Howard Johnson's", and we remember how brother Tom shinnied down the drain pipe, ran to the local "Ho-Jos" for frappes and sent them up to Jane and Gerrie via rope and basket, all while our unknowing parents entertained their guests downstairs...

This is the stuff of which life is made. And it's the thread that binds our common patchwork of experience. Those instants of sharing have provided us with a lifetime of reference... some of them concrete, as in the Flat Rock, or the scar on Jane's leg... Some of them obtuse, as in "enemies under the bed", or "large headlines mean bad news", or, "It's Latin..." Peg will know...

Diane Aylward and Esther Finch will probably have such "stuff" to carry in their memory banks from their shared experiences as Telstar High School seniors. Each of them has just graduated and each will go on to pursue her own dream. Diane, the daughter of Elsie and Donald Aylward, of Mason Town, plans to attend Casco Bay College to learn the Travel and Tourism game. As one of four siblings in the Aylward household, there are sure to be many "lost dimes" to carry into the future. We wish Diane much success and hope that she already knows the value of having Eileen, Crystal and Josh to "send clippings to."

Esther returns soon to her native Scotland and will enter Surrey University, in England, in the fall. The real life daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Finch, of Glasgow, Esther has spent this last year as the second daughter of Rick and Barbara Lewis of West Bethel. Having graduated from Lenzie Academy at home, Esther came to Bethel to enjoy a second "senior experience" in an American school before undertaking the study of microbiology at the university. And a memorable experience it was. Among her accomplishments at Telstar, Esther participated in the Outdoor Skills Leadership Course (for which she received recognition), and was elected to the National Honor Society (for which she sported the telltale "gold rope" around her neck at graduation exercises).

Neighbors Dick and Jane Hosterman and Lewis relatives, Rick and Linda (Lewis) Corey of Maine, N.Y., cheered with the West Bethel Lewises, Rick, Barbara, Jamie and Matthew when Esther's name was called.

Here in our small village, a few hundred people and their decendants have been interacting for a few hundred years.

In its incipience it was a farming community with just a handful of families. There were lots of siblings sharing lots of secrets as they pursued a way of life that we no longer know.

But of late, Jane Hosterman and I have been searching the archives of the Moses Mason House for secrets from the lives of folks who lived on just one short stretch of Old Route 2. Our assignment is to conjure up a presentation (for next month's meeting to be held in West Bethel) that will delineate the doings of the families who lived along the way.

We've already uncovered such tidbits as reference to the thriving hop industry (yes, the same hop vine that you found at the foot of my road), the use of Balm of Gilead buds soaked in alcohol for a sprain, haying on the islands of the nearby river and the annual picnic at Maple Lane Farm.

The "Old Road" (where we rented while building) was once the only road; the railroad had a depot by the cemetery; the Baptists had a church nearby.

For the next few days, however, we'll avoid the archives while we help our Grange sisters and brothers prepare for the Senior Citizen luncheon that we'll be hosting (even as you read this good news).

We who are not "gainfully" employed will be at the ready with baked ham and attendant complements for about 75 seniors from the Bethel area. The proceeds will help us in our industrious efforts to improve the appearance and utility of the hall and diningroom.

And before our ovens have had a chance to cool, many of us (Grange cooks) will shift our focus to the upcoming church supper to be held at the West Bethel Union Church on Saturday. We'll concoct casseroles and salads, rolls and pies for the pleasure of the palates of folks who watch for each of our dates with salivary anticipation.

Given this flurry of activity, it's a wonder that I have time to notice the daisies; I definitely haven't had the chance to weed them. But there they stand, among the tall grasses (for the moment I'm pretending that the tall grasses belong there), whispering, "pick me, pick me." And in keeping with this theme of shared experience, you ought to know that there is also a proliferation of iris in bloom... huge, brilliant deep purple iris... reminiscent of those that bloomed alongside the once and famous Flat Rock of our "growing-up" driveway. Some of them are behind the very same Flat Rock of our childhood; all of them thrive because of the kindness of a new friend, Ina, sharer of flowers and other secrets.

It's their bold purple that captivates me. It's my passion for purple that causes others to send me purple cards, buy me purple presents, color my memory purple. And that's the link of which I speak, Alice... (I can't tell my readers that your real name isn't Alice... it would take too long... maybe another time... It's a true "Dime in the Crevice" story).

Thanks for the clipping... Do you think the nickel is still there?... I'll meet you at the piano next week... It's been more than 40 years...

Love, C.B.

Stephanie Mahler marries in Mequon, Wisconsin ceremony

Kirby and Stephanie (Mahler) Schuller

Stephanie I. Mahler and Kirby B. Schuller were married in a double-ring service by Rev. Phillip Kenas on April 28 at 11 a.m. at Mequon United Methodist Church in Mequon, Wis.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guenther A. Mahler, of Bethel. Her husband is the son of the late Wolfgang C. Schuller; and Arline N. Schuller of Milwaukee, Wis.

The bride designed her gown, which was fashioned entirely of soft white satin brocade, with a fitted bodice and dropped basque waist. A self-fabric floral garland accented the portrait neckline and petal-shaped coverlets on the puff sleeves. The cathedral-length train was enhanced by a butterfly bustle and trimmed with a bow and rosette. The bride's headpiece consisted of a single large rosette of the same brocade, anchoring a cathedral-length veil of sparkling illusion. The bride's bouquet was a traditional free-form arrangement of gardenias, sonya roses and stephanotis.

Ms. Susan H. Powers, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown was floor length royal purple satin with dropped waist puff sleeves and back bow with rosette and her flowers were a spring bouquet of tulips and freesia freedom style in shades of apricot, pink and yellow.

Kelly S. Schuller, brother of the groom, was best man. Scott Ball, friend of the groom, and Kurt Schuller, brother of the groom, were ushers.

A reception was held at Tripoli Country Club in Milwaukee, Wis. It was a sit-down luncheon with dancing immediately following the ceremony.

The couple departed a week later on a wedding trip to Antigua and reside at their residence in Fox Point, Wis.

The bride graduated from Arlington Memorial High School in Arlington, Vt. and Allegheny College in Meadville, Pa., with a B.A. in 1973 and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. The groom graduated from James Madison Senior High School in Milwaukee, Wis. and the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee, Wis., with a B.S. in 1974. He is employed as vice-President of operations at the Equitable Bank.

THOUGHTS FROM THE

Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

What does Father's Day mean to you? Is it just a day for merchandisers to push greeting cards, neckties, rotisseries and recliner chairs? Was it created merely to balance Mother's Day and give dads "equal time"? Or can this special day give us a chance to consider something vital to our lives?

What kind of man is your father? What kind of character or outlook on life has he given you? How has he passed on a blessing to you?

At a breakfast the other day, a number of dads were considering this question. One found that his kids remembered how he would not let them get into the movies for children's price when they were over 12 even though they looked younger, and that principle of not taking unfair advantage has stuck with them.

Others could cite shared fishing or camping trips, playing ball together, or helping with homework.

Many dads read to their kids, as their fathers had read to them, and this is precious time well spent. Others feel that listening to their children is a gift that benefits both generations: it earns the elders the right to be heard by the younger, helps kids know that their thoughts and feelings matter, and so opens the way for good communications in the future.

In the Bible, relations between fathers and children vary, as they do in our lives. In Genesis 27, Isaac's blessing was considered so desirable that Jacob and his mother tricked the old man into giving it to Jacob instead of his brother Esau.

In Genesis 49, Jacob's "blessing" on his own sons is more a description of their characters. Do you wonder how much of their very different natures is traceable to Jacob himself?

Really, the blessing that each of these patriarchs was most concerned to seek and bestow was that given to Abraham by God—a promise of progeny and land to be sure, but most of all, a covenant that God would be their God and they would be God's people.

In the New Testament, Jesus called God "Father." And the justice, mercy, healing and love he demonstrated are blessings God still waits and wants to give us.

On this Father's Day, I invite you to reflect on how your fathers, earthly and heavenly, have blessed you. And I urge you to seek to make those blessings real in your lives and pass them on to your own children.

Brendon Bass, Co-pastor
West Parish Congregational Church

Boschetti

of a group of public officials, but "only if public discussion could be reasonably expected to cause damage to the reputation or the individual's rights to privacy would be violated." If the secret session discussion was in fact limited to the directors' statuatory responsibilities, then it is difficult to see how either their reputations or their right to privacy were at risk.]

Following the vote not to take up Boschetti's case, her supporters complained about not being able to present their case. "[The board] ramrodded it through," Early said. "They might as well have stayed in executive session all night."

Another supporter claimed: "Our superintendent and our school board have somehow forgotten that this is a public school system. Teachers, students and taxpayers are being denied the right to be heard."

Following the meeting, Hand refused to comment on Boschetti's situation, but other board members, some of whom were clearly frustrated by their inablility to tackle the issue, said they didn't think the district had heard the end of the case.

Boschetti herself later declined to comment on the board's inaction or to discuss her legal options. She did say, however: "It's definitely not going to die here."

In other actions Monday, the board responded to the concerns of Telstar teachers and students, and instructed the administration to come up with a way to keep the current rotating class schedule at the high school.

At its last meeting the board had voted to have one of the three full-time physical education instructors at Telstar spend half their time in the district elementary schools. To accommodate that change, the administration had proposed returning to a fixed class schedule, in which classes would meet at the same period each school day.

In response, nearly all the Telstar middle school and high school faculty signed a letter to the adminstration asking that a way be found to keep the rotating schedule. And two-dozen teachers and students turned out Monday to press that case.

Supporters of the rotating schedule argue that it spreads the impact (lost time) for extra-curricular activities over a number of classes, rather than those that happen to fall at the end of the day, and that it prevents students (and teachers) from facing the same classes every afternoon, when their energy levels and attention spans are lagging.

If playing sports meant a student had to repeatedly take time away from the same courses, sophomore Shilo Hutchins argued, then it would force many to give up sports. And, she pointed out, "colleges look for well rounded individuals," who take part in both athletics and academics.

The board briefly discussed options for dealing with the problem, then directed the administration to try to come up with a way to solve the personnel issue while still keeping the rotating class schedule.

The board also approved a recommendation from its education and policy committee to raise the district's passing grade from 60 to 70.

Over the years, the minimum passing grade issue has repeatedly arisen at board meetings, and the board has repeatedly voted down any changes.

Resistance to raising the grade has been based largely on the fear that it would disqualify many students from playing extra-curricular sports, and would serve as a disincentive for marginal students to stay in school.

Telstar High School Assistant Principal and Athletic Director Carroll Higgins raised these objections again Monday, but the board debated the matter only briefly before voting overwhelmingly to move up to the 70 point minimum.

Greenwood director Nancy Dewing said the new minimum would communicate the district's higher expectations to its students. "If we want them to perform, we've got to expect more from them she said." But she cautioned that the district should expect "a couple of rocky years" as teachers, students and parents get used to the new standard.

In other action Monday, middle school principal Bruce Bell told the directors that the 7th graders at Telstar had scored 139th among 779 schools nationally on the National Life Science Olympiad, and the school's 8th graders had done nearly as well, scoring in the top third of all students taking the test.

The 7th grade scores were the best in the state of Maine, he said, but he noted later that only four or five schools in Maine had elected to take part in the voluntary Olympiad.

Art teacher Arla Patch recognized eight students whose work has been selected for the statewide Maine Student Art Program. Jeff Freeman, Kara Bartlett, Anna Sysko and Darcie Barker were selected to have their works displayed along with 500 other students, and Regine Zitole, Patrick Donovan, Tanya Cole and George Kimball will have their works included in the 150-piece traveling art show that will tour the state.

In personnel actions Monday, the board approved the appointments of Arla Patch as a part-time FOCUS art teacher, Linda Smith as Telstar yearbook instructor for the coming year, and Sharon Higgins as student council advisor.

Rockland in May 1989.

The overall numbers are smaller than expected considering the size of the textile industry in Maine and the number of firms that have relocated in order to find cheaper labor, Fitzgerald noted. Shoe workers have comprised the bulk of the beneficiaries of the program in Maine, followed by textile workers and mixed production workers in chemical, sheet metal and wood products industries, he said.

After a petiton was filed on behalf of workers at GAMM—which closed March 2 citing a lack of orders—the U.S. Department of Labor began an investigation into the company's allegation that foreign companies were selling similar items for less on the domestic market.

A survey of GAMM's former customers revealed that the clients increased their purchases of imported women's slacks and skirts in a test period comparing 1989 to 1988, and comparing the first four months of 1990 to the same period in 1989, Fitzgerald said.

"Increased imports of articles like or directly competitive with the ladies' slacks and skirts produced at GAMM II Inc. contributed importantly to a decline in sales or production and to the total or partial separation of workers from the firm," he stated.

Both full and part-time employees are therefore eligible for benefits, he explained.

Former GAMM employees will be able to collect a full year of unemployment benefits, as opposed to half year's benefits without TAA, if they are in a training program, have completed a program or have a training waiver, according to Kathline Precuche, TAA coordinator for the Maine Department of Labor which will administer the program.

They also will be entitled to two years of training in any profession which will allow them to earn at least 80 percent of the wages they were paid at GAMM, she said.

If no work for which the former employee is trained is available in the Bethel area, TAA will also pay 90 percent of moving costs up to $800, if the applicant has a job offer elsewhere.

Part-time employees are not eligible for relocation benefits. To receive any of the benefits, employees must have worked for the firm at least ½ year and been paid a minimum of $30 per week. Workers must apply within 425 days of certification.

The relocation provision has been particularly helpful to shoe and textile workers whose firms have relocated to the South or foreign countries where labor is cheaper, Michael Adams, public information officer for the Maine Department of Labor said.

TAA, which has served 4,900 people in Maine since 1986, was based on a principle of "comparative economic advantage," Adams said.

The intent of the program was to shield Americans from adverse foreign competition, he noted. "If industry is not restricted by trade barriers" and "if Americans are going to be relocated from their jobs, they will need assistance," he said.

The number of applications approved in New England in the last two months has increased to four and five per month respectively, as opposed to two or three a month over the last year, said Fitzgerald. He said he does not know why the figures have increased. Maine has 160 active petitions for TAA assistance, Adams said.

2. The need for a variance is due to the unique circumstances of the property and not to the general conditions in the neighborhood;

3. The granting of a variance will not alter the essential character of the locality; and

4. The hardship is not the result of action taken by the applicant or a prior owner.

Appeals board member Michael Daniels said, "I'm grasping at straws here because I want to approve it. But I don't see any grounds to."

Daniels said his objection was to the distance involved and not that it was an after-the-fact permit request.

"I'd like to see them have it, but I have to agree with Mike," said appeals board member Chick Fitzmorris.

Board chairman Tripp said, "I don't have a lot of problems with it myself. I look at it as a replacement."

Daneils said he would have to vote to deny the variance. "This has got things going for it that we wouldn't allow for an individual," he said.

"If you go by the rules, I'm afraid I've got to vote against it, too," Fitzmorris said.

Daniels and Fitzmorris voted to deny the variance. Tripp voted to approve it.

In a telephone interview following the meeting, Cyr said since it was the town he was building the ramp for, he never paid much attention to whether or not they had a permit.

He said when planning board chairman Harry Swan came to see him about it, the construction, with Boy Scout help, had already been scheduled. "The fine (for an after-the-fact permit) was small, so we decided to go ahead," he said.

Cyr said the ramp, which cost about $1,000 , mostly in materials, to build, won't cost that much to move.

"I'll actually donate a lot of my time to get it moved," he said.

IN VIOLATION—The handicapped-access ramp built last summer at the Greenwood Town Office is too wide and too close to Bird Hill Road. The Greenwood Board of Appeals last week denied the town's request for a variance that would have allowed the ramp to remain in place. The town must now tear the ramp out.
